Used Exclusively for Colored Children.

MANY TEACHERS TO BE HIRED.

Principal Hardy Becomes a Professor in the College of the City of New York.

The public schools in this city will reopen on next Tuesday, when teachers as well as scholars will realize what has been done during the vacation season for their well-being and comfort.
In the majority of the schools the boys and girls will find that asphalt has taken the place of boards as flooring for the playgrounds. Nine new school buildings have been completed, and all of them are fireproof.

These new buildings have been erected in the Twelfth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-second wards, where increased school accommodations were sorely needed. The Twelfth Ward is the most favored in this respect, four new school buildings having been made ready for use there.

The silk mill on One Hundred and Second street, between Second and Third avenues, has been transformed into a fireproof school building, with interior fittings absolutely up to date. It will accommodate 1,100 scholars and contain twenty-three classrooms. It has yet to be designated numerically by the Board of Education, and its dedication to school purposes means the appointment of a new principal and more than a score of new teachers.

An annex has been built to Grammar School No. 54, which will provide fourteen additional classrooms, with a seating capacity for sixty scholars. In each of the buildings 100 and 107 West One Hundred and Fourth street, which have been abandoned.

New Annex to Grammar School No. 56.
(At One Hundred and Fourth Street and Tenth Avenue.)

The old Harlem Democratic Club building, on East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street has been rebuilt and henceforth will be known as Grammar School No. 86, a high school for boys.

The fourth new school in the Twelfth Ward, erected on East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, has eleven rooms and will accommodate over six hundred pupils of the primary grade. Additional classrooms will be added without fear of this school, to which a number has not yet been given.

In the Seventeenth Ward the new annex to Grammar School No. 13, on East Thirtieth street, will afford 110 additional pupils the opportunity to attend school.

The New Twenty-second Ward Schoolhouse.
(South side of Forty-sixth street, just west of Sixth avenue.)

Old Primary School No. 6, in which there were but four classrooms, has been abandoned because of the building of an annex to Grammar School No. 23 on East Fourth street, which makes room for 800 new pupils.

ings C. H. Snyder anticipates and other aspects that much scholars will be clamoring for admission to the schools than can be accommodated. To meet this expected demand Snyder will have an annex containing six classrooms for Grammar School No. 38, on West Fifth second street, ready by Oct.
1. By November there will be ready for occupancy an annex to Grammar School 2, containing fourteen classrooms, with individual seats for 800 children, and an annex to Grammar School No. 4, accommodating 100 pupils.

By December the new school building on Eighty-first street and Avenue A will have been completed. It will contain forty-five classrooms, with a total capacity for 2,700 scholars.

During the year 1893 buildings new in the course of construction or for which contracts have been made will be in-
will accommodate 1,100 scholars and contain twenty-three classrooms. It has
to school purposes means the appoint-
a score of new teachers.

Last year there were 32,900 scholars enrolled in the public schools, for whom there were 4,635 teachers. The added school accommodations will increase the number of pupils and teachers. According to the figures of Arthur McMullin, clerk to the Board of Education, the completion of the new school buildings and the increase in the number of classrooms will call for additional teachers. The Board of Education will meet on Sept. 12 and consider that and other matters. Since the closing of the schools I have not received any resignations of teachers, nor have I heard of any new ones. The principal of Grammar School No. 2, and of Moses Morris, Principal of the new school in Grammar School building No. 70 and Vice-Principal of Grammar School No. 23, have to be filled by the Board.

In this connection I may say that position to take the Professorship of English Language and Literature in the College of the City of New York.

the increase of the school population, grown with each year, we have made improvements and additions correspond-provided 7,000 additional sittings up to date we have added 7,700 sittings and by December, 1894, we will have added nearly 12,000 more. Not only have we provided additional accommodations, but we have been at particular pains to see that the classrooms are well ventilated has been done to secure the health and comfort of the scholars and teachers.
